

There was a thread here not all that long ago by someone who showed how he was using an old baby changer for storing horn cases, leaving one open on the top for drying -- but of course, that was horizontal storage, which doesn't meet the vertical requirement. If you're handy at all, it seems like you could build something a lot cheaper than the $400 rack in the ...

The alto has been loved by thousands of people around the world. Now we have the tenor, and it plays great! The BetterSax tenor has been designed to give the sax playing community a relatively affordable high-level student instrument that punches well above its weight. Following similar criteria to the alto that came
